The house

Casa Cima is the first house of block 6, so its side façade rises from the street as a single wall of natural stone. The social level opens in double height — living, dining and bar in one room that flows to the terrace and to a large garden looking over the community gardens toward the historic center. The master suite is placed on the social level, with its own sitting room, two baths and a double view. Built to shell; a pool facing the town can be added in the garden.

Architecture

Double-height social level; master suite deliberately on the same level as the garden, with its own sitting room. Three double bedrooms and a TV lounge upstairs.

ROBERTO'S NOTES

The master suite is downstairs on purpose: whoever lives here should have the garden and the view without a staircase in between.
